Established business opportunities with immediate growth potential are not around every corner. Here is one where the hard work of set-up and launch is not only done, but is already commercially self-sustaining. It's a business scenario waiting to be nurtured into the next level.

It all started with Pauleen Sullivan. Nicknamed the 'Palm Queen' by the International Palm Society and a lifelong collector of rare palms, Pauleen chose this sunny eastern flank of the island of Hawaii to establish a six-acre garden of rare palms from around the world. As these palms have matured, the garden has become an international resource.
